Developer Challenge #2

Using a Ubuntu 20.04 server we have provisioned for you please install a LAMP stack capable of running a PHP website such as WordPress.

Once you have installed and configured the LAMP stack please write an email to: codingtest@sitehost.nz explaining how you have configured the server, what some of the benefits or considerations of the taken approach might be. Also include information to explain how a customer might go about migrating their website or application to run on the server.

If you have extra time and would like to, please feel free to download the latest version of WordPress from <https://wordpress.org/> and install it on the server.

You will be provided root level access and these details will be provided to you separately to this challenge. This is an open book test so please feel free to use the internet. Good luck.
